

SCIENCE Writing Toolkit – LKS2 – Writing Prompts

Writing Prompts:

The Big Plastic Clean-Up: Your class has been asked to help clean up a local beach covered in plastic waste. What do you find, and how do you make the beach beautiful again?

The Bee Rescue Mission: Bees are disappearing, and it's up to you to find out why and help save them. What steps will you take to protect the bees?

The Magical Tree: There's a special tree in the forest that can heal the environment. What happens when you and your friends discover it?

A World Without Plastic: Imagine a world where no one uses plastic anymore. How do people live, and what do they use instead?

The Recycling Superhero: You have the power to turn waste into something useful. How do you use your powers to help your town reduce rubbish?

Saving the Ocean: You join a team of scientists trying to save the ocean from pollution. What discoveries do you make, and how do you help the sea creatures?

The Last Forest: You and your friends explore the last forest in your country. What do you see, and how do you work together to protect it?

The Great Bee Adventure: A group of bees needs your help to find a new home. What challenges do you face on your journey?

The Plastic-Eating Machine: Scientists have invented a machine that can eat plastic waste. How does it work, and what happens when you use it?

The Town with No Rubbish: Your town has become rubbish-free! How did you and your neighbours make it happen, and what changes did you see?

SCIENCE Writing Toolkit – LKS2 – Sentence Starters

Here's a bank of sentence starters that can be used as prompts or to help you get started with your writing based on the provided writing ideas:

Sentence starters to help you get going...

The beach was covered in plastic, but we knew we could...

As we entered the forest, we saw the special tree glowing and...

The buzzing of the bees grew quieter, and I realised we needed to...

In the world without plastic, people used...

I put on my recycling superhero cape and flew to...

The ocean waves crashed against the shore, but beneath the water, I saw...

As we walked through the last forest, we noticed something unusual...

The bees led us through the flowers, and we found...

The plastic-eating machine started humming, and soon it had...

Our town was clean, with no rubbish in sight, and I felt proud because...

As we cleaned up the park, I noticed that the animals had started to...

The beehives were empty, and it was up to us to figure out...

The magical tree's branches swayed, and suddenly...

The recycling bins were overflowing, but we had a plan to...

The machine whirred to life, eating all the plastic and leaving behind...